

A black and white photograph of a fragment of ancient pottery or stone. The fragment is irregularly shaped, roughly rectangular with jagged edges, and has a textured, mottled surface. It is set against a dark, solid background. In the center of the fragment, the alphanumeric label "H-48-296" is handwritten in a dark ink or paint. The fragment appears to be a piece of an archaeological find, possibly a tablet or a piece of a larger object.
